French Ambassador pays obeisance at Golden Temple Tribune News Service

Amritsar, September 9

French Ambassador to India François Richier today paid obeisance at the Golden Temple.

His visit was arranged by Dhillon Marti Foundation with a view to offer exposure to the students of Punjab. For this purpose, he also visited the historic Khalsa College.

During his visit to Harmandir Sahib, Richier obtained information about the Sikh religion and the architectural style of the holiest Sikh shrine. He was appointed Ambassador to India in 2011.

Sonia Dhillon, president, Dhillon Marti Foundation, said, being a Punjabi, her objective was to provide an international platform to the students here, so that they need not invest high amounts of money to study abroad.

She said so far 10 universities spread across Japan and the US had expressed their inclination to sign MoUs with universities here.
